Language. 8 item. Foreign Language. Endogenous RNA guide in mRNA target recognition. Ribonucleic acid (RNA) is important in many cellular processes such as gene regulation and mRNA translation. Although RNAs are far more diverse than proteins, they share some basic functions. One of these is the ability to base-pair with other RNAs, which serves to guide certain

RNAs to target sequences. Target RNAs may be transcribed from homologous sequences (cis-directed) or from non-homologous ones (trans-directed). In the latter case, the RNA guide plays a key role in the recognition of the target sequence by virtue of base-pairing with its complementary region in the RNA to be recognized. The mechanisms of such RNA-directed recognition processes are discussed in this minireview.
