With Audio-Mapping you can easily create your own light shows with a bunch of LED strips, and you can also use those light shows to play audio. If you would like to share your light show with the world then you can use the Twitter and Instagram integrations to show your friends. The web interface also includes an export to.MP3 function. Check out the video below to see it in action. Audio-Mapping Description: The Aurora application was designed to be a MIDI controller you can use to send MIDI meassages to any external device or other application. Select the MIDI out device from the device menu on the top right corner. By clicking on the space you will trigger different lights that would start to send continuously the note related to their position in the Y axis. The life of the light and its volumen curve depends on how long you hod the mouse down. The longer the mouse is down the longer the light will live and its volume curve will be softer. Xilinx's Aurora is an evaluation board that integrates several physical computing Xilinx's Aurora consists of a custom built PCB which contains a FPGA, a Pmod I2C Xilinx's Aurora is a reference implementation of the Xilinx Pmod I2C protocol which Xilinx's Aurora was designed to be more flexible and intuitive than the existing Xilinx Pmod I2C Xilinx's Aurora has a moveable arm and 3 different lights you can control directly. In addition there are 7 pads on the board for you to add external switches and actuators. Whats is Xilinx's Aurora used for? Building robotic projects, it can be very useful for physically operated projects like robots. The pads and the actuators allow you to add more than what the board can offer. Xilinx's Aurora is one of the current hot products on the market, we can find them in stores, on websites and in electronic shows. The Arduino is a great tool for beginners, but you can also use Xilinx's Aurora to build your own robot and use our motor driver IP. What's the difference between the Aurora and Xilinx's Zynq SDK? For Xilinx's Aurora, we have designed our own board which will be using the same FPGA based on Xilinx's own Vivado SDK. For Zynq SDK we will use the Zynq UltraScale+ MPSoC developed by Xilinx. Zynq SDK is mainly targeted to developers who want to develop Xilinx SoCs (System-on-Chip) and its development boards. But, Xilinx's Aurora can be used for more applications and that's the main advantage. Zynq SDK is only useful for Xilinx's SoCs, Aurora can be used for Xilinx FPGA boards and that's the main advantage for Xilinx's Aurora. In our Xilinx SoC Development Guide, we have more details on the difference between Xilinx's Zynq SDK and Xilinx's Aurora. No difference between the Aurora and Xilinx's Zynq. The Wayland project aims to provide a complete cross-desktop solution that will unify all the technologies we use to access the desktop: Windows, Mac OS X, Linux and everything else. The goals of this project are: 1. making all the power of the GNU/Linux
