I hope this utility will be useful to you. A: You don't really need any other program to test your connection other than: Cable/DSL Status Cable Cut offs and Bad ISP Listings Both of these programs are free and will test your Internet connection at a fair speed which will give you good idea of your Internet connection and if it's fast enough for your needs. For more information, and to check if your IP address is on the BAD ISP Listings: A: Why use such a gui tool? If you want to know the speed of your connection, just open a command prompt (cmd.exe) and run ping Google.com. If you want to be able to continuously monitor your connection, run tcptraceroute from the command line. An easy way to check for bad Internet connections is to try to access Google from a website. If it doesn't show up correctly, the problem is with your internet connection. If it comes up, it means your connection speed is fine. et al. [@CR23]). Thus, the 4 h difference between breakfast intake assessed with food records and the more objective method with 24-h DR is not unexpected.
