Hundreds of tickets have been distributed for the inaugural running of the K1X series in South Australia, with over 9000 entries already submitted to SA's Great Adelaide Race Club (GARC) for the start of season 2019. The event, which is expected to attract over 30,000 visitors, will be held along the shores of the South Australian coast and will feature the largest number of international competitors, triathletes and athletes in South Australia. The inaugural event will consist of six rounds of racing over a six-week period that will see athletes travel from all over the globe, with Australians and others from New Zealand, USA, Canada, Japan, Taiwan, South Korea, China and Europe all entering the race. "We are extremely excited to be welcoming up to 30,000 visitors to enjoy this flagship Australian-first event next year," GARC President Philip Leach said. "It's an event the whole of Australia is talking about and we are hoping to see the entire country come together to support the athletes in what is set to be a landmark day in the history of Australian Triathlon." The K1X series will feature an undulating but flat course along the east coast of the state and will feature a rolling start line with the first half of the course through the Adelaide CBD. A series of intermediate checkpoints will be placed along the course and checkpoints will be strategically located to reduce the distance between venues and improve spectator flow. The event will be opened by world champion Australian triathlete Bronte McCubbin. The South Australian Government along with Sport and Recreation SA and the South Australian Tourism Commission have formed a partnership to promote and raise awareness of the race during the lead-up to the event. "The inaugural K1X South Australian race is set to be a world-class, long-distance race along the shores of South Australia's unique coastline. "We are excited to support the event and work with GARC to showcase the incredible range of local destinations
