Education together with various colleagues in other centres. by A Jones Cited by 3 MLwiN is the successor to MLn, an established DOS based program. It performs multilevel analysis of data with any number of levels, together with associated software for the analysis of panel data. by AH Leyland Cited by 3 This is followed by an application within MLwiN. Further details on multilevel modelling and MLwiN are available from the Centre for Modelling in Education. by AH Leyland Cited by 2 MLwiN is used for analysis of non-normally distributed data, it includes tests for both linear and non-linear relationships within levels (i.e. maximum likelihood methods) and for variance, and for correlations between levels.
