Bittorrent is a peer-to-peer file-sharing protocol.. downloading data from table using python script I have a python script which downloads data from a table on a website. I want to know is there any way to get that data from the table. I have attached the code for download of a particular field of the data from that website. A: You can run the JS and use the requests library to download the data from the server in the desired format. If you run the JS it will return to you the output in the same way that it would be returned in a browser. So lets say you are using BeautifulSoup to get the table you could do something like this:

import requests
import bs4
url = " "
r = requests.get(url)
soup = bs4.BeautifulSoup(r.content, 'lxml') tables = soup.find('table', attrs={'id':'your_table_id'}) #Use BeautifulSoup to strip away the tags and dump the data in the desired format into your variable table_data = tables.find('tr').find_all('td', attrs={'class':'your_class'})
for table in table_data:
    print table.text

You can read more about getting data from servers with js here and some of the tools that are available to help with parsing javascript here.
