Need help. I can't go on because the program keeps saying "Error: Missing or incorrect binary registration file". I should note that I have ran before and it worked. The installer still says.GHC 7.10.3 was released on the 23rd. This is a bugfix release for the 7.10 stable series. The most visible effect of this release is the addition of support for -cubic-spline-fit-convexities and -cubic-spline-fit-concavities. These two options were added to allow users to define Fits (the analog of FList) which would be used for the spline fit (bspline). As of GHC 7.10.3, it is possible to specify more than one Fits. These differ from the regular Fits in that they are monotonic, i.e. all the elements in the Fits have the same sign as their corresponding terms in the fitting polynomial. For example, defining the two fits { -1,0,1,2,3,-4,5} { -1,0,3,-4,5} produces the same shape as specifying { -1,0,-1,2,3}. Aside from the addition of these new GHC.Integral.CubicSpline.Fits, there are a few bugfixes. Bugfixes GHC.List.Append is now the same speed as GHC.List.AppendList (with a suffix). GHC.List.Append is now the same speed as (with a suffix). Arguments to stgprac.exe are no longer rewritten in the generated assembly when they are passed to C functions. This was done before with the compiler -fhpc, but for some reason that was not enforced for stgprac.exe in 7.10.3. Is it true that a,b is always a generating set? A: Pick an element $w\in F$, and let $w=uv$ be a reduced expression. Then either $v=1$ or $v e 1$. If $v=1$ then $ua=ab$, but if $v e 1$ then $uv=avu$. Thus we are left with the case where $w=ab$. Then $ab=aa$ and $ba=a$. So your generating set is empty. Rules Just want to leave a quick message, sorry for any noise this 570a42141b
