Cursing in Quran and Hadith by Abul Fazl. The way to the garden olives. A double monolayer template for the creation of metalloproteins. A double-sided polyethylene membrane with 4-inch diameter and 13- μ m thick is obtained using a simple phase inversion method. After removal of the polymer by catalytic combustion, a layer of 11-kDa poly (acrylic acid) (PAA) with thickness of 500 nm and a monolayer of protein (bovine serum albumin, BSA) with thickness of 10 nm is obtained on each side of the membrane. The BSA layers are investigated by atomic force microscopy (AFM), X-ray photoelectron spectroscopy (XPS), and X-ray reflectivity. The lateral orientation and domain sizes of the BSA layers are determined by AFM and XPS. In situ experiments, where the two BSA layers are penetrated, give some information about protein-protein interactions (Zhang et al. (2007) Nat. Nanotechnol. 2, 753). A ZnO nanoparticles is deposited on the surface of the PAA templates and used as a substrate for protein adsorption and immobilization. It is shown that the formation of a multilayer BSA layer on the metallic substrates with functionalized surface can affect the catalytic properties of the ZnO nanoparticles, probably due to protein-protein and/or protein-metal interactions.Q: Rails - duplicate controller routes name I am creating a community powered forum and what I would like to do is allow users to see threads they have already read. So for example if thread1.name = post1 they will be shown the post1 thread in thread1 area. So what I have in routes.rb is: resources :forums do resources :posts end Now what I want to do is change the url in posts#show to :thread_path for thread1. Here is what it looks like currently and what I would like to be changed: resources :forums do resources :posts,
